Introduction

He Kupu Whakataki

The goal of the community safety action plan for Tāmaki Makaurau - Auckland is to make the city a safer, more welcoming place for everyone. It is an opportunity for us to take action on immediate issues and address long-term problems by working in much deeper partnership with government agencies, the private sector, and the community. The plan aligns with and supports Ngā Hapori Momoho, Auckland Council's Thriving Communities strategy.

A component of the Centre City Action Plan, the community safety plan is designed to effectively address crime and safety issues. It outlines how we will respond to key opportunities with well-orchestrated services and support; ensure unified backing from communities, businesses, and the public; and prioritise the well-being of our residents, workers, and visitors. Its key purpose is to:

- Strengthen our joint agency approach with clear roles, responsibilities and funded actions designed to deliver a safer city centre.
- Give greater visibility to, and grow confidence in, our collective work and progress.
- Enable faster identification of gaps in the safety work programme, and help us work collaboratively to address and fund solutions for those gaps.

We recognise that the recovery of the city centre cannot be achieved by the council alone. This plan's impact will always be subject to wider issues within society. And that means working in partnership with those most impacted - and those with the most impact.

Long term-issues require long-term solutions. International evidence shows that these solutions include: affordable and appropriate housing, much better resourced mental health and drug and addiction services, increased police presence and access, and assertive outreach services. Supporting action in those areas requires strong leadership and advocating for change at a national policy level.

This plan is crucial for Auckland's city centre for several reasons:

1. Addressing crime and safety concerns

- COVID-19 transformed how we think about safety in our cities. The pandemic was not just an attack on health systems, but on safety systems in general - including those designed to keep our cities safe.
- Lockdowns and social distancing led to a shift in crime patterns. Auckland moved on but its safety requirements evolved. Travel, retail, and work styles; demographics plus social and economic pressures - all call for a more holistic and collaborative approach to urban safety.
- To be successful, this approach needs to be supported by effective leadership, governance, and social connectedness - and to inspire trust and confidence in the agencies in charge.
- Auckland's city centre is more vulnerable to higher crime rates than other city suburbs, with factors such as population density, demographics, nightlife, and economic activity all contributing to increased safety concerns.

2. Enhancing public confidence and trust

- Having a comprehensive community safety plan shows that local authorities, community groups, and partners are committed to keeping the public safe.
- By publicly addressing how community safety issues will be handled, we can build trust among residents, businesses, and visitors - helping to create a city-wide sense of security and well-being.

3. Supporting economic and infrastructure development

- For Auckland's economy to prosper and grow, it is essential to keep the central city safe and secure. Businesses are more likely to move into, and succeed in, areas where crime is low and people feel safe.
- A community safety plan helps attract investment, encourages tourists, and supports local businesses to grow - all key contributors to a more prosperous central city area.

4. Promoting partnership, social connectedness and inclusion

- Taking a collaborative, holistic approach to urban safety, highlights our commitment to the whenua, connections to iwi and dedication to protecting our communities
- Safety is a key part of building welcoming and lively communities where residents from diverse backgrounds feel at home and valued.
- A safety plan that actively involves residents, community groups, and marginalised populations helps bring people together, reduces fear of crime, and encourages people to take part in community activities.

What builds a safe
community?
Three realms of protection.

He aha ngā mea e tū ai tētahi hapori haumarū? Ngā ao o te rauhītanga.

When organisations, communities, and individuals work together, they become stronger and better equipped to tackle safety issues. Encouraging positive collaboration between partners and the community is crucial, because personal security is so closely tied to stronger social connectedness.

Crime Prevention Through Environmental Design (CPTED) is a strategy that focuses on creating safe and secure neighbourhoods and cities through thoughtful planning, design, and structures. We place CPTED values at the heart of our approach to community safety. Within the city centre and its different quarters, these values can be organised into three ‘realms’:

Protection through urban and spatial design

Includes city planning with built-in safety feature principles. Helping to create urban spaces that are easy to navigate, with clear lines of sight; controlled access points and parking; ample lighting, and a well-connected infrastructure. This also highlights the visibility of Te Ao Māori and mana whenua within urban design.

Protection through the management of the quarter / neighbourhood

Includes cooperation between: mana whenua and mataawaka entities; housing providers (public and private); businesses and business associations; social and wellbeing agencies; youth / rangatahi organisations; police; council; educational institutions, economic development agencies.

Protection through social connectedness

Includes community and neighbourhood development; improving understanding and application of Te Tiriti principals; building greater awareness of mana whenua connection to this land; opportunities for positive interaction; building and promotion of shared values and mutual trust between residents and visitors.; active community and interest group networks.

03

Plan objectives

Ngā whāinga o te mahere

The community safety action plan clearly lays out the responsibilities of the council group and its partners. Because community safety is complex and involves so many different factors, Auckland Council acts as a facilitator, uniting the groups involved in a joint agency approach that delivers better coordination and accountability of services.

This plan identifies:

- Who the lead and supporting partners are for each action
- What other partners support the delivery of the action
- When they will be delivered
- The ongoing funding status of activities

As well as identifying the key roles, responsibilities, and services - the plan will also help with:

- Making evidence-based decisions for intervention and investment
- Guiding how we engage with communities

- Delivering activities to boost community confidence including visibility, data and perceptions research
- Operations planning for the Safety Coordination Hubs and other city centre patrols
- Providing community education and safety resources
- Addressing bylaw enforcement
- Making advocacy recommendations

04

Key objectives

Ngā whāinga matua

Centre city partners have collectively identified several key priorities over the next 6 - 12 months.

1. ‘Together for Tāmaki Makaurau’
Launched in December 2023, the initiative focuses on collaborative patrols, and improving communication and data sharing. This includes NZ Police, CityWatch, Māori Wardens, Community Patrols NZ and others.
2. Safety Hubs
Located at Queens Wharf, High Street and Day Street these operate as bases for community patrol teams to collaborate and coordinate. Operating hours vary between the sites and will expand as volunteer numbers grow.
3. City centre community patrols coordination and expansion
Funded by the Mayor’s office this role coordinates the safety hubs and groups that use them; Community Patrols NZ, Māori, Pacific and Community Wardens, and ethnic patrol groups. The role has already resulted in a successful volunteer recruitment drive, and a sustainable partnership model with the police, for ongoing community patrols.
4. Expansion of City Watch
A trial expansion of the CityWatch team from 6 to 18 personnel. Includes more investment to help the team work with community groups to better understand and respond to complex needs and behaviours. The expanded team will patrol larger areas and known hotspots including Te Komititanga, Queens Wharf, and Mid City.
5. Audit of and investment in central city lighting
Working with Auckland Transport to assess key areas of concern and identify central city through-ways that need better lighting.
6. Community support and outreach
Ongoing investment in groups that ensure our approach includes social and wellbeing support. This includes advocacy to improve mental health and dependency services.
7. Enhanced CCTV monitoring
Additional resource to help the council partner with police and Auckland Transport in CCTV monitoring.
8. Nighttime Economy Research
Tataki Auckland Unlimited leads this research to better understand the nighttime economy, including the effects of community safety. The ultimate aim will be to identify a programme of initiatives to improve the nighttime environment and economy.
9. Alcohol harm prevention
Working across partners, NZ Police, compliance teams and the hospitality industry to reduce harm related to excessive alcohol consumption.

1. Community Partnerships

Empowering our partnerships to make more effective contributions to urban safety

- Local Business Engagement
Collaborate with business associations and hospitality organisations to implement safety measures and promote business community involvement.
- Social Service / Outreach Partnerships
Partner with community organisations to enhance community outreach and to support initiatives, e.g. Auckland City Mission outreach, Home Ground, Lifewise Peer support, Merge Community, Housing First, Kāhui Tū Kaha, Kainga Ora.
- Central City Community Safety Taskforce
Support the taskforce as a vital channel for communication and collaboration between partners interested in community safety and response in the central city.

2. Māori / mana whenua partnerships

Honouring Te Tiriti and creating an inclusive, thriving and safe city centre

- Support Māori-led organisations
Partner with Māori-led organisations to deliver programmes that support safe communities and well-being, e.g. Māori wardens.
- Iwi engagement
Ensure that council and partners are engaging iwi in policy and direction setting for safety in the central city.
- Visibility
Ensure that Te Ao Māori is visible in the urban design and planning of the physical environment in the central city.

3. Community engagement, development and outreach

Strengthening community bonds helps to foster a sense of shared responsibility for urban well-being and safety outcomes

- Investment in effective street outreach

Social service outreach offers positive long-term impacts but requires significant investment and support.

- Early intervention

Security, patrols and compliance response are most effective if supported by effective, timely outreach and support.

- Community spaces and hubs

Utilise “third” spaces e.g. Libraries, community places, hubs and local facilities to host inclusive programs for all central city residents.

- Arts and project spaces

Provide purposeful activities, skill building, arts space and social engagement for all residents.

- Community development

Support the aspirations and ability of communities to take action on issues that matter to them in relation to safety and community wellbeing.

- Rangatahi programmes

Support and fund programs that engage young people and Whanau in positive activities and provide alternatives to potential involvement in crime.

4. Collaboration with NZ Police

Improving prevention and enforcement measures, responses and public trust in a safe and secure city centre

- Coordination
Foster strong communication and coordination between partner services and NZ Police to address safety concerns effectively.
- Joint initiatives
Collaborate on joint initiatives, such as community policing programmes and surveillance system development.

Helps to create physical and psychological barriers to crime, and helps foster a sense of community ownership towards the city

- Crime Prevention through Environmental Design (CPTED) Integration
Incorporate CPTED principles into urban planning and development processes.
- Public Spaces Enhancement
Work with relevant departments to improve lighting, signage, and overall design of public spaces based on CPTED principles.
- Maintenance and graffiti management
Ensure that public infrastructure is well-maintained to promote community ownership and to prevent safety hazards and potential criminal activities. This includes street cleaning and rapid response to hazards to public health (bodily fluids).
- Parks, Green Spaces and amenity
Support the creation and maintenance of parks, green spaces and public amenities that contribute to community well-being and safety.
